

Tempest – A Museum Between Past and Future

Original title: Tempest - Een museum tussen verleden en toekomst

After five years of renovations, the Africa Museum in Brussels reopened its doors in December 2018. Under the scrutiny of local and international press, director Guido Gryseels reintroduced the collection to the world. And, although the collection comprises 11,000 square metres, everyone will be scrutinising one chapter in particular: the part dedicated to Belgium's colonial history.
